Mediator Skills Training

Our Hong Kong Mediator Skills Training course has been developed to reflect best practice in training delivery and the evolving practice of mediation with an emphasis on the practical application of the skills required by an effective mediator.

Our 25 years' experience of mediating cases, as well as our local Hong Kong presence has also allowed us to build a course which delivers the best international mediator practice while taking into account emerging practice in Hong Kong.

Module 1: Mediation in Practice: Foundation Skills Training

This 5-day course focuses on what CEDR does best: Highly skilled trainers and coaches who are also experienced mediators and members of the HKMAAL mediator panel, assist course participants to learn and apply the process and skills of mediation based on our years of practical experience.

This module will comply with the Hong Kong Mediation Accreditation Association Ltd (HKMAAL) Stage 1 General Mediator Accreditation Requirements which allows successful participants to apply for Stage 2 Assessment leading to accreditation as a HKMAAL Mediator. HKMAAL accreditation pending.

Features and Benefits of Module 1

Experienced Mediators as Trainers and Coaches

All CEDR trainers and coaches have many years of actual mediation practice both in Hong Kong and internationally. In order to guarantee high quality standards, we monitor on a regular basis the quality of our training and coaching delivery. One of the main trainers for our mediation training in Hong Kong is the MD of CEDR Asia/Pacific who is member of the Hong Kong Government's Mediation Steering Committee and someone who is regularly appointed as Lead Assessor for HKMAAL Stage 2 Assessments.

Proven content and training methods

This course content has been proven and refined over 25 years of delivery. The module methodology is highly interactive containing role-play, practical exercises, live demonstration by trainers, and intensive one-on-one coaching and feedback.

Coaching focused on preparing for HKMAAL assessment

Trained and experienced coaches will focus on an individual participant's needs in order to prepare them to mediate effectively and undertake HKMAAL assessment.

Comments from previous CEDR training participants have included:

“Excellent training in mediator skills by experienced mediators who are top class trainers ...”

“The CEDR course is the Rolls Royce of mediation skills training.”

Module 1 Additional Information

Prerequisites

These courses rely heavily on interactive teaching methodology. This demands a high level of competence in spoken English and comprehension from delegates.

Preparation

Participants will need to prepare thoroughly. A mediator handbook, case studies and role-plays are dispatched one month in advance.

Continuing Professional Development (CPD)

Law Society of Hong Kong CPD points have been applied for.

The HKMAAL CPD points have been approved for 40.5 points.

Module 2: Internationally Quality Assured Mediator CEDR Accreditation

This module is for those mediators in Hong Kong who have undergone Module 1, who want to differentiate themselves in the competitive mediator marketplace in Hong Kong and establish that they are of a quality consistent with other mediators internationally.

Features and Benefits of Module 2

Advanced skills training

Applied skills training provided to participants drawing on challenging issues experienced over the years by CEDR mediators in actual mediations.

Additional personalised coaching

One-on-one coaching and feedback is the best way to focus on individual's strengths and areas for development.

Assessment for CEDR Accreditation

Assessed by CEDR's training faculty, successful participants are awarded the internationally recognised badge of quality - CEDR Accredited mediator.
